Mark descriptors for questions 4 (i)

Marks	Descriptor
8	As full a response as can reasonably be expected in the time available; all information given is relevant, accurate and from the required perspective (e.g. in role if required by the question); written English and presentation good.
7–6	A good range of relevant information, but which omits one or two important basic facts; fails to write from the correct perspective when required, or has major inaccuracies in written English or presentation.
5–4	Contains only about half the relevant information which could reasonably be expected at this level; recall of detail may be seriously inaccurate in important respects; appropriateness of perspective, written English and presentation may be taken into account.
3–2	Contains only one or two pieces of accurately-recalled relevant information; appropriateness of perspective, written English and presentation may be taken into account.
1	Minimal response containing no more than one piece of fairly accurate relevant information.
0	No accurate or relevant information given, even though written English and presentation are good.

Mark descriptors for questions 4 (ii)

Marks	Descriptor
2	A response which fully answers the question, i.e. normally two points supported by relevant facts; these facts should be additional to those made in response to part (i) and should be used evidentially.
1	A partial response, supported by one relevant fact used evidentially.
0	A response which fails to answer the question and contains no relevant facts.
